Misrepresented Condition in Arranging Deal.

Robert Mitchell, member of the firm of Mitchell & Hotchkiss, wins his suit against Charles Straus, of 1827 Park Avenue, under a decree entered yesterday by Judge Moncure, in the Chancery Court, annulling a contract entered into between the plaintiff and defendant for the sale of a house and lot at 1101 West Avenue.

Charged Misrepresentation.

Mitchell at once brought suit for rescission of the contract and for the recovery of the $2,000 which he had paid in on the deal. He charged that Straus knew at the time of selling that the walls of the house were cracked, and that the foundation was insecure, and that in showing him over the property he concealed its defects. Counsel for Straus denied all these allegations, declaring that the property was sold to Mitchell after his personal inspection and at his own risk.

Evidence brought out during the trial of the case developed the facts that Evidence brought out during the trial of the case developed the facts that the house was built on made ground filed in to a depth of twelve feet or more, and that it lacked an independent wall on the west, sharing, instead, the cast wall of the house at 1103 West Arenue, likewise the property of Straus. W. B. Davis, a brick contractor, who supervised the building of the house at 1101, it was brought out, had advised Straus against omitting the independent wall, and warned him that it would endanger the building.

In his review of the evidence, Judge Moncure holds that Straus knew of the Right to Repudiate.

Ir support of his view, Judge Moncure quotes from a Virginia court decision pertinent to the case, as follows:
"No man is bound by a bargain in which he has been deceived by fraud or misrepresentation. Whenever a purchaser has been induced by a material misrepresentation of the vendor terial misrepresentation of the vendor to buy, he has a right to repudiate the contract—a right correlative with that

Puzzled by Bill.

Even the most willing mind cannot unravel the complexities without assistance. The local customs officials have already struck a snag in endeavoring to fix the duty on burlap. Burlap is one of the chief articles of import at this $1,000,000 port. One construction of the new law admits burlap duty free, while another 'mposes a duty of 10 per cent ad valorem. The duty on burlap will be specifically stated in the tariff index now being prepared under Secretary McAdoo's creder. Many entries of burlap were made yesterday through this port, and the customs officials determined to admit it duty free, making the provision, however, that final clearance of the entries will not be made until a ruling has been given.

morning, "The Social Aspect of the Synagogue," and Saturday afternoon, "The Choice."

The Day of Atonement is the holiest day in the Jewish calendar. This year it falls on Saturday, October 11. Its biblical designation is Yom ha-Kippurim, later shortened to Yom Kippur. According to biblical tradition, it is one of the cycle of holidays instituted by Moses.

However, the Day of Atonement is not dependent on the sacrificial serv-ice prescribed in the Bible. Thus, after the destruction of the Temple in the year 70, when sacrifices were abolished, the Day of Atonement was able to survive, and of all the holidays of the Jewish calendar it has most completely held its own in the hearts and observance of the Jewish people. Em-phasis was laid upon confession, penipresented in a manner to permit easy tence, prayer and good deeds. It becamination.

As in the biblical ceremonial, confession continues to be an important feature of the service; yet, while confession brings forgiveness of sins between man and his Maker, sins between man and mar are not forgiven until redress is made for the injury. The eve of Atonement Day, therefore, becomes the occasion for the cessation of feuds and ill-will. And the Day of Atonement is known as the Sabbath of Sabbaths—when one is at peace with all the world.

The service of the Day of Atonement heginning with Kil Nidre service on the eve of Atonement, is a continuous one throughout the entire day. The prayers in the synagogue are intoned in plastive penitential toned. in plaintive, penitential tones.
